

Patrick Henchie
Product Marketing Manager, Nokia South Africa

Since joining Nokia in 2008, Patrick has been involved in bringing many new and exciting products to the South African market. His main focus is ensuring Operator ranging and total product readiness for future devices and services.

Patrick has been involved in the telecoms industry since 1995, working for both fixed and mobile operators and other device manufacturers. His understanding of the market as a whole brings great value to Nokia South Africa, as they transition from a device centric company to a solutions one.

Watching the industry grow from fixed to mobile, and devices transition from basic mobile phones to sophisticated mobile computers, has been a memorable journey with no end in sight. This keeps Patrick motivated and a permanent student of Wikipedia and Google.

Patrick has a diploma in electronics and interests ranging from technology to sport, music, movies and books.

Patrick Henchie – Product Marketing Manager, Nokia South Africa